Lo's Lesson in Punctuality.

Matthias Spitlog, chief of the Wy-andottes, lives in Kansas, and being known to possess about a million dollars' worth of property, is called the wealthiest Indian in America. Although over 70 years of age, and unable to read or write, he is a keen business man. By his shrewdness and ability he has acquired large tracts of land in Kansas and Missouri, houses and lots in Kansas City, and has money invested in a number of paying enterprises. The white men to whom he gave a $20,000 lesson in punctuality had persuaded him to sell them a certain tract of land for $140,000, and were to pay him the money at 10 o'clock at a bank in Kansas City. On the ap-pointed morning, a few minntes before the hour named, the old Indian entered the bank and took a seat. with his eye fixed upon a clock. The capitalists had not appeared when the hands of the clock reached the hour. As it began to strike the old Indian rose to his feet, and at the last stroke of the clock he promptly walked out of the building. On the street, less than a block away, he met the men who were to buy his land hurrying toward the bank. 'They begged him to return with them, but Harper's Young People says he refused, saying that if they still wished to deal with him he would meet them at 10 o'clock on the following day at the same This time both the white men and the Indian were promptly on hand; but when the former offered old Matthias the price agreed upon for the land he told them that, while $140,000 was yesterday's price, to- dead.

day's price was $160,000, and to the terms they finally were compelled to accede.

WHERE COLUMBUS DIED.

House Still Stands, Although Crumbling Into Decay.

On the Calle de Colon, a dingy, narrow old street in Valladolid, about 200 yards long, stands the house in which Columbus died, although fast crumbling into decay. The fact that it does stand is not due to any effort taken for its preservation, but rather to the solidity of its construction. It is of considerable size, and was, no doubt, originally constructed for some per-son of rank and position. The entrance is through a great Norman archway of stone, and the entrance hall is spacious, while the staircase is broad and its incline so gentle, that one might almost drive up it. The basement of the building is of stone, though the upper stage is of brick, covered with stucco-or as much stucco as has survived the ravages of time. The outer walls are massive, and their interior is, no doubt, composed of a species of concrete, or mixture of mortar, pebbles and fragments of stone, which figures strongly in all old Spanish struct-

No nation in the world, perhaps, has less respect or appreciation for the antique and time-honored than have the Spaniards. The house where Colnmbus died is now used as a cow-stable. Above the stone archway is a time-stained medallion, bearing a man's head, standing out in bold relief on the stucco. derneath is the engraven inscription "Aqui murio Colon—Ano 1506." (Here died Columbus, year 1506.) Close to this hangs a small signboard, with the following inscrip-"New milk sold here; you may tion: see it milked." An old woman liv-ing there gives tourists some information.

Upon entering the ancient structure one steps into the spacious entrance hall, which is pitched with small pebbles. On either side is a large door-way, but the doors have been removed, and through the openings one can see the cows standing in rows. Twenty cows are stabled in the lower part of the house. The cowman and his family live up stairs. One is quickly led into a large room overlooking the streetthe room where Columbus died. The windows are furnished with massivo iron gratings, as, indeed, are all the windows in the house. A thin partition, running half way across the room, forms a small recess or alcoha. in which is an old wooden bedstead, with a wretched straw pallet and a scanty covering of old clothes. On such a bed, probably, died the great discoverer in poverty and desolation. In the middle of the partition is a little square window, through which anyone sleeping in the alcoba might see if any one entered the room. The walls, bare and discolored with age, look as if they had not been whitewashed for at least a century. The floor is of square earthen ties, the same on which Columbus trod four centuries ago. In this room he was for a long time a prisoner. In that alcoba, where the cowman and his wife sleep every night, the great discoverer died. Near the head of the bed the form of a cross has been scratched with some sharp instrument deep in the plaster of the wall. Tradition says that Columbus made the cross.

Our Great Country.

Do you know that very few realize what a great country ours is? Listen.

The United States is eighteen times as large as Spain, thirty-one times as large as Italy, and sixty times as large as England and Wales. It is three times as large as Great Britain and Ireland, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Spain, Portu-gal, Switzerland, Denmark and Greece all put together. Our rivers and lakes contain one-half the fresh water on the globe. We can travel up the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers 3,900 miles, or as for as New York is from Constantinople.

We can crowd into the space occupied by the United States, not including Alaska, the countries of Great Britain and Ireland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Germany, Austria, Holland, Belgium, France, Spain, Portugal, Switzerland, Italy, Greece, European Turkey, Palestine, Japan. and China. Should there be a great famine all over the world, we could raise enough wheat to supply all with

Sketch of a Gentleman Moderation, decorum, and neatness distinguish the gentleman; he is at all times affable, diffident, and studious to please. Intelligent and polite, his behavior is pleasant and graceful. When he enters the dwelling of an inferior, he endeavors to hide, if possible, the difference be-tween their rank in life; ever willing to assist those around him, he is neither unkind, haughty, nor over-bearing. In the mansions of the great, the correctness of his mind induces him to bend to etiquette, but not to stoop to adulation; correct principle cautions him to avoid the gaming table, inebriety, or any other foible that could occasion him selfreproach. Pleased with the pleasures of reflection, he rejoices to see the gayeties of society, and is fastidious upon no point of little import. Ap-pear only to be a gentleman, and its shadow will bring upon you con-tempt; be a gentleman, and its honors will remain even after you are Four hundred switchmen employed by the roads entering Cleveland are following the lead of their comrades at Columbus. Higher wages and shorter hours are demanded. The railroad officials declare that they will not entertain the propositions of the yardmen and a general tie-up is looked for.

During a fireworks display following the Columbus ceremonies at Los Angeles, Cal., a piece of 6-inch gas pipe, filled with powder by a local manufacturer, exploded prematurely, causing the immediate death of two little boys and a girl, while at least nine others received fatal injuries and five died later.

Notices have been received at western general freight offices that until further notice no shipments of any kind would be received by the C., C., C. & St. L., better known as the Big Four. This shut off is on account of a strike among the switchmen of the road, which is likely to spread over the entire system.

When Ira N. Terrell, speaker of the last Oklahoma legislature, was sentenced to the penitentiary for life at Stillwater for the murder of George Embre he swore he would never go there. The jail at Stillwater is beavily guarded and the officers are prepared for the attack, which they expect almost any night now. most any night now.

Of the fair grounds 1,037 acres are occupied, 5,000,000 square feet are under roof and the total cost of the buildings will be $18,-750,000. An Albuquerque dispatch says that the At-An Alouquerque dispatch says that the Atlantic & Pacific operators who offered to go to work after the short strike were refused by Superntendent Ganel who says he can run a month without operators. All trains are running by time card. Ganel is supposed to be in communication with head-quarters at Chicago and refuses to discuss the matter in any phase. the matter in any phase.

The greatest interest at the stock yards just now is centering in hogs. They continue to climb each day, and sell now at $1.40 (20.45 per cwt. higher than this time last year. This, on a 300-hundred pound hog is equivalent to $4.20(4.35, and the sentiment is growing that this improvement has come to stay. It is conceded by nearly every one that the crop of winter hogs in the West will be short.

Death of Mrs. Harrison.

Mrs. Harrison died at the White house at

The approach of the final dissolution had been foreseen for some weeks and the family had been prepared for the worst ever since Mrs. Harrison had been brough back from the Adirondacks, but the grief of the president and his children is not the less poignant. For the second time in the history of the White house a president's wife has died within its walls. Mrs. Harrison met ber death with the patience and resignation of a devous Christian, and the last days were comparatively free from pain. The president and family for the last twenty-four hours before her death had been almost con stantly at her bedside waiting the end.

The human citadel is open to attacks from two sources and aside from accident, these two are the avenues from which all of the maladies that afflict the race spring. The first of these are what is known as the excre tory organs. These are the lungs, the kidney and the skin. These suffer from congestion which takes the form of colds. Starting from what is called a cold the maladies that resul are wide spread and ranging from a cough to consumption. They attack all ages and all stations. No one is free from these trouble There is, however, a remedy that is a safe-guard. This is REID'S GERMAN COUGH AND KIDNEY CURE. It contains no poison and will heal any form of lung trouble or an malady that arises from a cold. The other class of disease arises from derangement of the digestive organs and result in constipation, When the bowels do not act the stomach soon refuses to digest the food, and we are troubled with indigestion, fever, and a long train of troubles that embrace a wide range of maladies.
